LAWMAN
... in the West's toughest town!

TOWN-TAMER

Hard work by honest citizens made Dodge City a leading trail town for the many herds of longhorns... unfortunately, the wealth of the booming cattle business also attracted the lawless breed of man...

But the fighting marshal of Dodge, WYATT EARP, made the town an unhealthy place for outlaws, riffraff, and tin-horns!

WELL DO, MARSHAL!

NOW, WAGGERS—WHAT ARE

THAT FEISTY LITTLE FELLER?

I DON'T

YOU'RE MY HUSBAND,
JOHN— AND I LOVE YOU— BUT NOT WHEN YOU TALK LIKE TARTY!
IT'S NONSENSE! AND YOU KNOW IT!

THAT OPENING'S HARDLY BIG ENOUGH FOR A MAN'S LEG, MUCH LESS A WHOLE MAN! ONLY A BOY COULD GET DOWN—AND HE WOULDN'T HAVE THE STRENGTH TO DIG IT OUT ANYWAY!

THAT'S RIGHT, HAL— WE NEED A SMALL MAN! DO GET TONY READY— AND HURRY!

YES, SIR!

SHORLEY, HAL SPEAKS WITH TONY AND HIS FRIENDS.

IT'S MIGHTY DANGEROUS, TONY, BUT YOU'RE THE ONLY MAN THAT CAN DO IT! YOU WILLING?

I SURE AM, BUSHYBARK! ANY TIME YOU'RE READY!

SOON—

NOW, MOVE SLOWLY, TONY! IF ANYTHING GOES WRONG, GRAB A TUG ON THE ROPE AND WE'LL PULL YOU UP!

BE CAREFUL, SON!

IT'S WORKING, BYATT! WE'LL MAKE IT!

HE'S GOT A WAY TO GO YET—AND IT WON'T BE EASY! WHEN HE GETS DOWN WE'LL DIG OUT THE OPENING AT THE END!

A FEW MOMENTS LATER, TONY

THE UNCONQUERED BARRIERS.

THERE'S TONY'S SIGNAL! START HULLING, HAL!

THE FIRST BARRI-ER IS HUNGLED UP.
THEY HOURLY BRING THE BOYS BACK BOARD AND THE "SMART".

A FEW MINUTES LATER, TOMMY IS THE LAST MAN TO EMERGE

"GOOD WORK, TINY! WITHOUT YOU, THOSE MEN WERE DOOMED!"

"OH, JOEY—"

"— I WAS SO PROMPTED FOR YOU!"

"NO NEED FOR THAT,
LUCY! IT WAS A
JOB THAT NEEDED
DOING, SO I DID IT!"

"IT WAS A HARDY JOB, TINY— AND ANYBODY THAT EVER SAYS 'YOU'RE NOT A MAN' IS GOING TO HAVE TO ANSWER TO ME! I'M SURE SORRY FOR THE WAY I ACTED!"

"FORGET IT,
BUT! THAT'S ALL IN THE PAST!"

"YOU PROVED SOMETHING ELSE TODAY, TINY— BESIDES THE FACT THAT YOU'RE A GOOD MAN?"

"WHAT'S THAT, BARBARA!"

"A MAN DOESN'T NEED A GUN
TO BE BIG— IT MIGHT ONLY MAKE HIS FEEL BIG! IT'S WHAT THE MAN OF THAT COUNTS!"

NO CALL FOR THE MARSHAL

Keeping peace in and around Dodge City was the marshal's job. But not all the citizens found it necessary to call on the law in times of trouble. . . an old farmer who lived a short ways from Dodge was such a man.

One morning, the old man found his fields covered with longhorns, steers. The steers were from a passing herd, and the trail boss happened to ride by in time to catch the full blast of the old man's anger.

The trail boss, being a cattleman, felt that he demanded more respect, and was angered by the old man's outrage. . . after all, who was this old nester to tell him what to do? The angry words led to a fight. . .

The trail boss, with foolish contempt, stepped off his horse, resolving to beat up the old fellow. But much to his surprise, the cowboy was immediately knocked down with a slugging right.

The old man moved in, tobbing and wearing, and in no time at all the cowboy was begging for mercy. The old nester, a former sparring partner for John L. Sullivan, could see no need to call the marshal for help.

"THANK YOU, BOY DEPUTY! MY TOWN IS HONORED BY THE FRIENDSHIP OF YOU AND YOUR FAMILY!"

"YOU AND YOUR PEOPLE ARE WELCOME ANYTIME, LONG BEAR!"

As the deputy brags a short distance from Dodge City...

WYATT'S INFORMATION CENTER

The main function of the Dodge City livery stable was to keep horses. Prosperous rural dwellers were the best customers by far, enjoying the prospect of having their horses cared for while they spent a carefree day in town. But Wyatt knew the livery was useful in other ways, too.

The stable was a busy rental service, renting saddle horses and carriages, and catering to local land agents who wished to show Eastern clients the lay of the land.

It was a veritable "information center" for the marshal. This was because the livery came in contact with so many new arrivals in Dodge.

Being a meeting place for "yarn spinners," much false information also came from the livery. But the trained ear of Wyatt Earp could generally distinguish truth from fiction... he knew the livery crowd too well.

A PLEDGE  TO PARENTS

The Dell Trademark is, and always has been, a positive guarantee that the comic magazine bearing it contains only clean and wholesome entertainment. The Dell code standards entirely, rather than regulates, objectionable material. That's why when your child buys a Dell Comic you can be sure it contains only good fun. "Dell Comics are good comics" is our only credit and constant goal.

Thanks to a booming cattle business, a number of salesmen began arriving in Dodge City, Kansas. Dressed in clothing strange to the West, the dandish-looking salesmen were referred to as "drummers."

The ranchers soon discovered that these men had many items for sale that were unknown in the local stores — so the drummers were treated with great respect.

Upon invitation to a hospitable ranch, the drummer relaxed for a few days, enjoying generous entertainment, before the contents of his sample case were discussed.

Everything imaginable was ordered: gaudy saddles, tinned food, clothing, ammunition, and certain luxurious items that were extremely scarce on the plains of Kansas.

Unfortunately the West was full of ruffians who looked upon the drummers as clowns, and many a poor salesman was forced to "dance" to the tune of a six-gun.

NO GUNS
DODGE

Dodge City was quite accustomed to seeing a group of cowboys come galloping down the main thoroughfare, shooting up store fronts and frightening the citizens . . .

But this kind of "fun" was short lived with the arrival of Marshal Wyatt Earp. Wyatt's reputation was well-known . . .

. . . and when he pointed out the sign that prohibited the carrying of guns within the city, he usually had an attentive audience.

Occasionally one of the brawny or more foolish cowboys would object to checking his guns, but Wyatt, with a little persuasion, managed to change the rowdy's mind, and the "no guns in Dodge law" was enforced.
